Ko Emma Webb toku ingoa.

Kia Ora I am Emma Webb and I hail from the Far North and Tamaki-Makau-Rau (Auckland). I currently live in Papaōiea (Palmerston North) with my partner and our five-year-old daughter who keeps us on our toes!

I work full time as a Physiotherapist for TBI Health in Vocational Health and Community Physiotherapy. Part of my role with TBI is to develop Māori health within the company which is an exciting and proactive environment to be working in.

I have a background in both private practice musculoskeletal physiotherapy in New Zealand and Australia (outback), as well as the Waikato DHB Community Team.

I have a strong level of understanding and workings of governance. My experience in this is with Tae Ora Tinana (Māori Physiotherapy Governance Group), Nga Pou Mana (Māori Allied Health Professionals) and the Inaugural Waikato DHB Allied Health Forum.

In my life experience I have been able to demonstrate leadership listing, reflecting and leading from the front. This applies whether it is supervision of physiotherapists, building business for my employers or supporting and assisting with navigating my whānau through change.

To the role of PNZ Executive I would bring an enthusiasm for innovation in health care and a passion for Māori health development. By developing the profession of physiotherapy in line with values from Te Ao Māori we will see a benefit for all patients, our physiotherapists and our healthcare system.

Furthermore, I want to explore the opportunity to enhance the PNZ experience for members by bringing even more value to the membership we pay for.
